

Rogers calls for world parley to crack down on terrorism

UNITED NATIONS (AP). — Secretary of State William Rogers yesterday called for a global conference early next year to intensify cracking down on international terrorism.

Rogers also proposed a draft treaty which would suspend air services to airlines unwilling to punish or extradite hijackers and another treaty to protect diplomats and government officials.

Rogers presented a proposed anti-terrorist treaty, and asked the United Nations to convene a special diplomatic conference, as part of a nine-point "declarative" action programme to clamp down on terrorist acts.

"These actions would mark a major advance in the struggle against international terrorism," Rogers told the 132-nation U.N. General Assembly as it opened 2½ weeks of general debate.

Nixon sets up anti-terrorist committee in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP). — President Nixon yesterday established a high-level U.S. Cabinet committee "to quickly and effectively work the wide problem of terrorism."

White House said Nixon "attaches the utmost importance to an immediate vigorous attack on this crime and its earliest resolution."

The committee, to be headed by Secretary of State William Rogers, including top U.S. officials, will include government activities to combat terrorism at home and abroad and to set up procedures to appropriate action quickly and effectively should acts of terrorism occur.

A memorandum to Rogers, told the Secretary of State that other governments' international organizations in support of the new "Cabinet committee to combat terrorism" are secretaries of the Treasury, Defense and Transportation, the Attorney General, the U.S. Ambassador to the U.N., the Director of Central Intelligence, Nixon's assistant for national security and defense, and the acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

Rogers proposes proximity talks in Middle East

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter). — U.S. Secretary of State William Rogers yesterday called for proximity talks leading to an interim Suez Canal agreement as a promising first step toward reaching a Middle East peace settlement.

Mr. Rogers, speaking on the first day of the annual debate in the General Assembly, said the no peace/no war situation which prevails in the Middle East "does not and will not serve the interest of anyone in the area."

He said a stable, just and durable peace agreement based on Security Council Resolution 242 remained the U.S. objective, "but this cannot be achieved without the beginning of a genuine negotiating process between the parties concerned."

"Such talks would separate the combatants, restore to Egypt operation of and authority over the Suez Canal, involve some Israeli withdrawal, preserve the ceasefire and provide momentum for further efforts toward an overall settlement."

Mr. Rogers acknowledged that the number of 11 Israeli athletes at the Munich Olympics had set off deplorable patterns of action and counteraction and had seriously clouded the prospect of early progress in the area.

Sadat expected to meet Soviet leaders in Syria

By ANAN SAFADI, Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

Lebanon's leftist leader, Kamal Jumblatt, is trying to arrange a reconciliation summit meeting between the Kremlin leaders and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, leftist sources close to the Soviet Embassy in Beirut said yesterday. The meeting is expected to take place soon in Damascus.

Jumblatt, who has just been awarded the Lenin Peace Prize, is now in Moscow. He went there after a visit to Cairo, where he conferred with Sadat for two-and-a-half hours.

Beirut's leading leftist weekly, "Al-Balagh," yesterday indicated that Jumblatt had been sent to Cairo by the Russians. The newspaper noted that Damascus had been chosen as the meeting place between the Kremlin leaders and Sadat as a compromise between the two parties whose relations have neared breaking point following Egypt's ouster of the Soviets.

"Al-Balagh" said Sadat would visit Moscow after the Damascus summit conference. Later the Kremlin's ruling troika, Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev, President Nikolai Podgorny and Premier Alexei Kosygin, will all go to Cairo.

The Beirut sources gave no time for the exchange of meetings and visits, and they were thought to be awaiting the outcome of Jumblatt's talks in Moscow.

It is believed that Sadat may seek to put the meetings off for some time. His main concern at this time is the forthcoming Middle East debate at the U.N. General Assembly, where he hopes to win support from Western circles because of his decision to expel the Russians from his country.

Before any conciliatory moves between the two sides, there may be some personnel changes in the Egyptian government. There could be a government reshuffle to remove elements not acceptable to the Soviets, and this may claim Premier Aziz Sidqi; the Jumblatt mission calls for the Egyptian Premier to visit Moscow to settle differences before the summit meetings are held. The Soviet ambassador in Cairo, Vladimir Vinogradov, may also be replaced. He has been home ever since he and his Egyptian counterpart were recalled by their governments after the Russian pull-out.

Japan and China say accord near PEKING (AP). — Japan's Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka expressed regret and repentance yesterday for his country's past aggression against China and joined Chinese Premier Chou En-lai in predicting total agreement in their talks to normalize long-strained Sino-Japanese relations.

Tanaka used the words "profound self-examination" to express Japan's feeling about a half-century of Japanese military aggression which left China broken and exhausted. Sources said that he fell short of an outright apology because he must face the extreme right-wing of his own liberal democratic party, which is critical of his rapprochement move toward China.

Tanaka's remark came at a glittering banquet in the Great Hall of the People at the end of the first day of his six-day state visit, expected to establish diplomatic relations between Peking and Tokyo and sever Japan's 22-year-old diplomatic links with Nationalist China.

Chou touched briefly on Japanese militarism in his toast, but said (according to an unofficial translation) "The Chinese cannot forget the unfortunate history over the last 100 years dating back to 1894. Both nations should look for a better term in relations on the basis of the principle of equality and reciprocity in maintaining good neighbourly relations."

It was the common desire of both countries to restore diplomatic relations he said, and added, "now is the time for us to accomplish this historic task."

The visiting Japanese delegation described Tanaka's two-hour opening session with the Chinese Premier as "surprisingly frank and very useful."

Chou's assessment of the two-hour official talks held earlier in the day with Tanaka was more emphatically stated. "Today, leaders of China and Japan have already begun their talks of great significance on the question of the normalization of relations between the two countries. We expect that our talks will achieve complete success," he said.

In his reply, Tanaka said, "it is possible to reach agreement," and added, "I am willing to accomplish this important task and take a step forward along the road of long-standing Japan-China friendship."

Chou, speaking vigorously and often emphasizing his words, asserted, "the restoration of diplomatic relations between China and Japan and the establishment of friendly and good, neighbourly relations on the basis of the five principles of peaceful coexistence will open up broad prospects for the further development of friendly contacts between our two peoples and the expansion of economic and cultural exchanges between our two countries. Sino-Japanese friendship is not exclusive; it will contribute to the relaxation of tension in Asia and the safeguarding of world peace."

Although Tanaka proposed the health of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, who was not present, Chou did not least the Japanese Emperor. Since Japan's defeat, the Emperor's role has been reduced to that of symbol of the Japanese nation.

Six hundred Japanese and Chinese sat down to a dinner of Peking duck in the vast cream-and-white main dining room while a military band played "Sakura" (cherry blossom).

Soviet warships said back in Egypt

BOSTON (INA). — Soviet warships are once again using Egyptian ports on the scale that prevailed before President Sadat's ouster of the Russians, according to Western intelligence sources, the "Christian Science Monitor" reported yesterday from London.

John Cooley, of the "Monitor," said the sources are careful not to speculate whether the renewed Soviet naval presence in Egypt is linked with the heightened tension in the Middle East following the new wave of Arab terrorism in Europe. "But his disclosure adds one more large piece of a rambling jigsaw puzzle of growing danger in the area," he wrote.

He said that according to the intelligence reports, Soviet missile cruisers and destroyers are once again making regular calls at Egyptian ports and home port facilities are again provided for Soviet naval personnel at Alexandria, Port Said and Mersa Matruh.

While the Russian surveillance of the U.S. Sixth Fleet by Egyptian-based reconnaissance aircraft ended with the July pullout, Soviet electronic intelligence communications ships, known as spy trawlers, are again operating in large numbers in and out of Egyptian and Syrian ports, Cooley wrote. "These trawlers are capable of doing almost any surveillance job on Western ships that the former land-based reconnaissance flights could do," one analyst said according to Cooley's report.

However, he said, the flights once carried out by Soviet Mig-21, Mig-23 and Tu-16 aircraft have not been resumed. "There is no sign that any Soviet naval aircraft have returned to Egypt. But several thousand naval personnel are the main remnant after the exodus of more than 15,000 air defence and ground forces training personnel."

Contrary to press reports Lebanon, terrorists still believed at odds

Jerusalem Post Arab Affairs Reporter

The Lebanese Government reportedly summoned top army officers yesterday in Beirut refused to hand over a meeting with terrorist leaders in an attempt to avert a showdown between the two sides.

Contrary to yesterday's press reports, there is still no sign of an agreement with the terrorists, who are demanding that the government abolish the state of emergency declared shortly before the L.D.F. forces withdrew from southern Lebanon over a week ago.

Earlier reports from Beirut indicated that the Lebanese Army command was insisting on restricting the terrorist movement in Lebanon. Some army commanders reportedly have expressed their determination to curtail terrorist activity despite governmental attempts at compromise with the terrorists.

Cairo's semi-official "Al-Ahram" newspaper reported yesterday that a new crisis was triggered off over the weekend when terrorists arriving in Beirut refused to hand over a meeting with terrorist leaders in an attempt to avert a showdown between the two sides.

Beirut's "An-Nahar" newspaper, however, indicated yesterday that an escalation in the current crisis had been avoided following urgent consultations between Premier Sa'eb Salam and Fatah chief Yasser Arafat. The paper said that the two parties reached an agreement between them to ease tension.

The terrorist broadcasts in Egypt and Syria yesterday made no reference to the situation in Lebanon, nor any mention of an accord reached between terrorists and the Lebanese Government. While reporting routine news of Lebanon, the stations last night referred to the Lebanese government as "the Beirut authority," indicating irritation with the Lebanese regime.

Salam against Arab aid in any future Israel raid

By BRIAN ARTHUR, Jerusalem Post Correspondent

BONN. — Lebanese Premier Saeb Salam has indicated that he rejects the possibility of inviting foreign Arab troops to help repel any future Israeli military incursions into Lebanon.

Asked in an interview in yesterday's issue of "Der Spiegel" if he preferred the help of Syrian or Lebanese troops to a partial Israeli occupation of Lebanon, Salam replied, "We would never under any circumstances prefer a partial Israeli occupation. We would offer constant resistance and attempt with all effort to throw the Israelis back," as he claimed his troops had done during recent battles with Israeli army units a week ago.

"Pressed" to state if this meant he preferred stationing Libyan or Syrian soldiers in Lebanon, the Premier commented, "That's no alternative. But we would never accept an Israeli occupation. We would always resist it."

Salam charged Israel with using the Arab terrorist massacre of Israeli athletes in Munich to "drive a wedge" between Bonn and the Arab world. "When will the Germans finally wake up and realize that there is no reason not to be friendly with the Arab world?" he asked.

The Lebanese leader complained that Germans were "still suffering under the complex" of the Nazi past.

Salam said he did not justify terrorist actions abroad but that he could understand those who committed them.

In Beirut yesterday, Premier Salam said at a news conference that Lebanon was trying to achieve "peaceful coexistence" with Palestinian terrorists after Israel's incursion across the border.

He added that the armed Palestinian terrorists must obey the law of Lebanon like any other people living in the country.

Asked about charges by Lebanese officials that Israel used poison gas during the attack, Salam said "I am sure they used napalm. We have very good reason to believe they used poison gas but I won't say anything until it has been established by international health authorities."

Uganda, Tanzania seen near agreement on peace plan

NAIROBI (AP). — Tanzania and Uganda neared close to agreement last night on a plan to end the eight-month conflict which had threatened to plunge them into war.

All Foreign Minister Omer Ghalib, shutting between Kampala and Kampala, has tentative approval from both sides. Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Idi Amin of Uganda for a peace plan of Somali leader Ahmed Said Barre, diplomats said on Sunday in Dar-Es-Salaam that President Nyerere had rejected the settlement proposals. There was no official statement from Dar-Es-Salaam. Uganda Radio Amin welcomed the plan but demanded that Tanzania withdraw its troops from the border.

It did not disclose full details plan. But sources said they led troop withdrawals by sides from border areas and Ugandan assurances. Ugandan supporters of ousted President Milton Obote would also be back.

Tanzania was holding out for less from General Amin than it would be pulled back of his recent threats to Tanzania a lesson," political said.

A form of supervisory body to be set up, probably the auspices of the Organization of African Unity, sources said.

border itself was quiet, with the insurgent groups now in Tanzania," they said.

sent Kenneth Kaunda, returned to Lusaka late evening from Dar-Es-Salaam and newsmen his talks with Nyerere on the crisis had "very useful."

while, a Ugandan government spokesman last night announced new measures to speed up the departure of non-citizen Asians here under notice of expulsion.

He said that in future all Asians being expelled from Uganda must take with them, when they go to the Bank of Uganda to obtain exit clearance, sufficient money to purchase air, sea or rail tickets for themselves and their dependents.

The tickets would have to be purchased before the Asians left the bank premises, the spokesman added.

He also announced that all Asians being allowed to stay on here, either because they had proved their claims to Ugandan citizenship or because they had been exempted from the expulsion decree, would be required to purchase identity cards from the immigration department within the next seven days.

U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim yesterday sent another message to General Amin, about the fate of the British Asians.

In London, one Asian businessman who arrived yesterday said President Amin's army "is in complete control. Even the police are being victimized. I saw soldiers chasing and beating people — including police — in the streets just to get money and valuables from them."

6-man family terror cell captured

ACRE. — A six-member family terrorist cell was captured last week in the hamlet of Nuskir on the Lebanese border, the Northern District police announced last night.

The six, all members of the Mejis family, were caught before they had a chance to use the supply of explosives, detonators and foreign currency that had been furnished them by terrorists on the other side of the border. Under questioning it developed that the family, who live near the Arab al-Aramisha Beduin tribe, had undertaken to leave bombs in various population centres in the northern part of the country.

The principal suspects arrested are Jihad Hussein Mejis, 38, a shepherd, and his brother Mussa, 18. Arrested with the two brothers, who were said to have planned the sabotage actions, were another brother Suhbi, 16, sisters Najada, 22, and Amira, 17, and their mother Diba, 50, all of whom are suspected of having been in on the plot. The six Mejis were remanded for 15 days yesterday by the Acre Magistrate's Court.

Members of the Arab al-Aramisha tribe told The Jerusalem Post reporter Yoel Dar on the scene yesterday that the family farmed a small tobacco patch a few hundred metres from the Lebanese border and worked as labourers in nearby Jewish settlements. The father is bedridden. The Mejis were described as an undistinguished family, none of whom had gone beyond primary school. Their neighbours dissociated themselves from any terrorist activity.

The rugged Arab al-Aramisha area is cut off from the rest of Israel and can be reached only on foot or by donkey. Nine years ago a young woman member of the tribe was sentenced to six years in prison for heading a spy ring that worked for Lebanese intelligence.

4 die in Golan car crash

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TIBERIAS. — Four men were killed yesterday morning in a head-on collision between a Simca car and a civilian truck at the Rafid junction in the central Golan.

The dead, all of them in the Simca, were Rafi Cohen, 38, of Kiryat Motzkin (the driver), and three residents of Sejera in Lower Galilee: Zvi Michaeli, 38, Rafi Abu Hodera, 36, and Baruch Edelstein, 46.

The accident occurred at 11 o'clock, when the car skidded to the left side of the road and smashed into the oncoming truck. All four men were killed on the spot. The bodies were brought to Poriya Hospital here.

On Sunday evening Roni Greenberg, 19, of Netanya, died in hospital of the injuries he sustained that afternoon when his scooter and a passenger car collided at the corner of Brenner and Gordon streets in Netanya. Greenberg had been taken to Hillel Yoffe Hospital in Hadera.

An alluring sun braced by a soft autumn breeze brought thousands of Succot holidaymakers into the Capital yesterday.

Police worked hard around the clock in an attempt to keep traffic moving as cars, passenger vans and charter buses kept piling into the city, laden with pilgrims to the various alaya l'pregal rites.

But out-of-towners were not the only people filling the streets yesterday. Thousands of civil servants, working a shortened day because of the holiday, took advantage of the pleasant weather to spend a day on the town with their wives and children. The Biblical Zoo in Romema Wood enjoyed capacity crowds as did other outdoor recreation areas.

Many shops were closed in keeping with their owners' custom of not performing everyday labour or business transactions on the intermediate days of Succot and Pessah. Hasidic Jews were prominent in their black kafitans and shtraimlach (fur-rimmed hats).

Several hundred pilgrims came up by train at noon.

Waiting to greet them at the railway station were officials from the Ministry for Religious Affairs and the Jerusalem Municipality. Together with more than 1,000 Jerusalemites the pilgrims walked and danced up to Mount Zion behind a Municipal Youth Band, continuing from there to the Western Wall.

Some 4,000 Georgian immigrants were brought up to Jerusalem in a fleet of special buses from settlements around the country. For many it was their first visit to Jerusalem.

President Zalman Shazar intently follows the dedicatory service in the restored Yohanan Ben-Zakkai synagogue in the Old City's Jewish Quarter yesterday. Next to him are Mr. Joseph Katz, of Pittsburgh, Mayor Teddy Kolek of Jerusalem, and Mr. Evelyn de Rothschild.

Sephardi synagogues opened for services in J'lem Old City

Jerusalem Post Reporter

A quarter century after their capture by the Arab Legion and their subsequent desecration, the Sephardi synagogues of Jerusalem's Old City were officially opened again last night for prayers.

The dedication ceremony, marking the completion of five years of painstaking restoration, was attended by hundreds of dignitaries including President Shazar and the Prime Minister.

The tetra-synagogue complex had been the heart of Jerusalem's Jewish community for 400 years until the surrender of the quarter during the War of Independence. It was in the synagogues that the civilian population of the quarter took shelter during the fighting and from which many went into captivity. Although the furnishings were smashed after the surrender and the interiors used as stables, the shells of the buildings were left intact, unlike what happened to the rest of the Old City synagogues.

A festive mincha prayer service was held in the Yohanan Ben-Zakkai Synagogue, the overflow crowd being accommodated in the adjoining synagogues into which the service was piped on loudspeakers. Mr. Shazar was among those honoured with the privilege of opening the Holy Ark.

In the ceremony outside the synagogues, attended by nearly 2,000 persons, Deputy Knesset Speaker Yitzhak Navon noted that in the synagogues the Sephardi community had kept a shofar which they hoped would be used to proclaim the arrival of the Messiah.

The president of the Sephardi community, Elie Eliachar, paid tribute to the work of the architect Max Tani and the others involved in the restoration project. Mr. Eliachar's own grandfather was one of

Police to press for Paglin's further remand today

Jerusalem Post Staff

TEL AVIV. — The police will probably ask this morning for the further remand in custody of former Irgun Zvai Leumi operations chief Anshel Paglin, an associate of his attorney, Mr. Shmuel Tamir, told The Jerusalem Post last night. Paglin's five-day hotel arrest under police custody at Hotel Basle here is due to terminate this morning.

Avraham Herskovits, another suspected participant in the attempt of the Jewish Defence League to ship arms abroad for use against diplomatic missions, was yesterday remanded for an additional five days. A police officer told the magistrate here that his release would hamper the investigation, asking that he be remanded for another 10 days. But Herskovits' lawyer, Mr. Meir Schechter, objected, saying his client was prepared to appear any time the police required him to. The magistrate settled for another five days.

Yesterday, Mr. Paglin was taken to the offices of the National Police here for fingerprinting. A police officer tried to read out the counts on which they intend to charge him, but Mr. Paglin refused to listen. He demanded that the charges be read in the presence of his lawyer, Mr. Shmuel Tamir, M.K.

Mr. Paglin is being charged with illegal possession of arms and with building in his oven factory the metal container in which the weapons were packed for shipment out of the country.

Rabbi Meir Kahane, head of the J.D.L., was again questioned yesterday in connection with the case. He was allowed to go home at the end of the interrogation.

It is learned that 12 police detectives have been assigned to the case. On Sunday, police again searched Mr. Paglin's oven factory but reportedly did not uncover any fresh evidence.

Misawhile, anonymous phone threats from a person claiming to represent the J.D.L. were received yesterday at the offices of several newspapers — "Ha'aretz," "Al Hamisra," "Davar," and "Nofim Kurier," the Polish language daily published by the Labour Party. The caller warned that if the papers did not stop attacking the J.D.L. their reporters would be beaten up.

In Jerusalem, the executive committee of the Journalists' Association in the Capital yesterday reaffirmed its previous decision to rent a hall in its Beit Agnon to the J.D.L. for its "public trial" on the Hebron pogrom of 1929, and the Kfar Etzion massacre of 1948. The committee's original decision, earlier this month, to rent the hall to the group had met with criticism by members of the Association and a minority of the committee itself.

The Journalists' committee said in a statement issued yesterday that it would adhere to its standing rule that the facilities of Beit Agnon (which is owned by the Association) were available to any legally recognized public body for any lawful purpose. But in view of the possibility that the J.D.L. function might give rise to violence, the Association demanded that the J.D.L. deposit a IL50,000 bank guarantee to cover any possible damage to the premises.

Six letter bombs in Australia

CANBERRA (Reuter). — Six letter bombs have been found in mail in Australia, official sources said yesterday.

Five of the unexploded letter bombs were posted from Amsterdam to Israel diplomats, a foreign affairs department spokesman said.

The sixth was found in an envelope addressed to the U.S. Consulate in Sydney from Rabaul in New Britain.

The consul, Mr. N. Hamah, said he was puzzled why the letter bomb had been sent to him. There was no apparent connection between his letter bomb and the other five, he said.

The Australian Postmaster General, Sir Alan Hulme, told a press conference that two of the letters were addressed to the Israel Consulate in Sydney and three to the Israel Embassy here.

The bombs brought to 48 the number mailed to Israel missions in various countries.

State Cup final today

Jerusalem Post Sports Reporter

TEL AVIV. — President Shazar will today present the State Cup to the winners of the football cup final between Jerusalem Hapoel and Tel Aviv Hapoel, to be played at the Ramat Gan stadium at 4.30 p.m.

Education Minister Yigal Alon is also expected to attend the game but no ceremonies will take place, as sports activities are still under the shadow of the Munich tragedy.

Jerusalem Hapoel will make its first appearance in the cup final, while Tel Aviv Hapoel this will be its 10th appearance. The Tel Aviv club last won the cup in 1960.

Tel Aviv Hapoel last night announced its strongest team with a line-up of Bejerano, Ben Yonathan, Primo, Goldstein, Castro, Cohen, Shany, Feigenbaum, Zelikovsky, Rachminowitch and Hasum. The team is coached by Harry Game.

Jerusalem coach Amasa Lefkovich will announce his line-up only today, but it is almost certain that it will include striker Eli Ben-Rimov who has been "on strike" until now because his demands on the club have not been met. Ben-Rimov, it appears, has relented and will be available for the game.

The other danger men in the Jerusalem attack are Singal and Mahlab. Zion Turjeman will be missing from the team, being suspended for two weeks last Saturday for deliberate fouling. The Jerusalem defence will have to keep a close watch on Tel Aviv's "new find," goalkeeper Rachminowitch, and Feigenbaum.

Letter-bomb 'brain' named by paper

Jerusalem Post Reporter

The leading Dutch paper "De Telegraaf" reported yesterday that an Arab called Salah Rafat was the brain behind the letter bombs that were sent last week from Amsterdam to Israel embassies abroad, and to Jerusalem.

In a story from its London correspondent, "De Telegraaf" said that Rafat travelled on a Libyan passport under the name of Ali Hassan Rafat and two other Arabs, who travelled on a Moroccan and an Algerian passport, are reported to have passed through London last week on their way to Ireland, where they are said to have contacts with the Irish Republican Army.

Rogers on terrorism

Arab and other missions have been threatened," he said.

Apparently alluding to Arab and African reservations to inclusion in the Assembly's agenda of an item on terrorism and the amendment of its title to cover the "underlying causes" of violence, Mr. Rogers said the issue was not war or the striving of people to achieve self-determination and independence.

"Rather it is whether millions of air travellers can continue to fly in safety each year. It is whether a person who received a letter can open it without the fear of being blown up. It is whether diplomats can safely carry out their duties," he said.

"It is whether international meetings, like the Olympic Games, like this Assembly, can proceed without the ever-present threat of violence," he added.

Mr. Rogers urged all states which had not ratified the anti-hijacking conventions to do so.

"We are now faced with an urgent need to deter and punish international acts of violence, not only in the air but throughout our societies," he said.

"The U.S. urges that this Assembly act — and act at once — to meet this challenge."

He said a draft treaty calling for the prosecution or extradition of those who attacked or kidnaped diplomats and public officials should be completed and opened for signature at this Assembly session.

A treaty providing for the suspension of all air service to countries which failed to punish or extradite hijackers or saboteurs of civil aircraft should be promptly completed and opened for signature, and any nation which harboured hijackers should be ostracized.

The proposed new treaty against terrorism should include "universal condemnation of and require the prosecution or extradition of persons who kill, seriously injure, or kidnap innocent civilians in a foreign state for the purpose of harming or forcing concessions from a state or from an international organization," Rogers said.

Under the U.S. proposed treaty, the countries signing it would pledge to extradite alleged offenders or to prosecute them under "severe penalties... without undue delay."

Rogers submitted the U.S. bid to the General Assembly in a 9-point programme on terrorism. The points included:

- A call on all countries to join in the Tokyo, The Hague and Montreal conventions against aircraft hijacking and sabotage.
- A request to the international civil aviation organization to convene a conference before the end of this year to take up a U.S.-backed proposal for tougher enforcement of the anti-hijacking rules.
- Urging of all nations to take immediate steps to prevent use of their territory or resources to aid or give sanctuary to international terrorists.
- Proposed urgent action by all countries to move against international terrorism through internal measures and in cooperation with other states.
- Recommended that U.N. members set up procedures for exchange of information in moving against terrorists.
- Recommended "urgent efforts" by all members to address the political problems which may, in some instances, provide a pretext for acts of international terrorism.
- Called for adherence to a treaty for prevention and punishment of crimes against diplomats.
- Proposed inclusion of terrorism again as an item on next year's General Assembly agenda.

Rogers' submission of the U.S. programme for U.N. action overshadowed other aspects of his speech, the annual U.S. policy address before the world body.

Heraclian finds at Shikmona

HAIFA. — Two mosaic floors and a coin of the Byzantine Emperor Heraclius (610-641) were found on Sunday in the third month of the excavations at Shikmona, the ancient port town south of here.

A group of 19 newcomers, from six countries, now living at the immigrants hostel at Kiryat Eliezer and learning Hebrew, took part that day in the excavations conducted by the City Museum of Ancient Art under the direction of Dr. Yossef Aligavish.

Heraclius was the Roman Emperor who defeated the Emperor Phocas, a usurper, many of whose gold coins were recently found near the Government Hospital here.

Egged wants IL2m. from Leyland for faulty chassis

LOD AIRPORT. — Egged has served notice on British Leyland Motor Corporation that it will not conduct any business with that company in the future unless it makes good some IL2m. in losses incurred by the Israel bus cooperative as a result of alleged defects in bus chassis manufactured by Leyland.

This was reported here yesterday by Egged's representative, Mr. Ram Caspi, on his return from talks with Leyland officials in London.

He said he had submitted a list of 60 claims concerning defects in Leyland bus chassis. Leyland is studying the claims and promises to give a reply within a few weeks, he said.

Mr. Caspi said he believed Leyland would recognize the claims, either in the form of total reimbursement, or as credit against future purchases.

Man dies in Kinneret

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TIBERIAS. — A 44-year-old Kfar Saba man, David Natratz, died in the Kinneret yesterday afternoon when the pneumatic raft he was floating on capsized in shallow water near the village of Migdal.

The accident occurred at about 4.30, about 60 metres off the Hor Halimot beach. A lifeguard pulled Natratz out shortly after he fell in the water but found him already dead. As the water is shallow, it is suspected that the cause of death was a heart attack.

Civil aviation slowdown this morning

LOD AIRPORT. — Hopes for the prevention of the slowdown strike of some 1,500 civil aviation workers this morning faded rapidly last night, with no settlement in sight as the 11.00 p.m. deadline approached.

The slowdown — to start with a two-hour delay in the unloading and loading of incoming and outgoing planes — will affect international as well as inland flights here and in all other airfields in Israel.

If the workers' demands — to equalize their wage scales with those of El Al and the Israel Aircraft Industries — are not met by Thursday, the slowdown will be intensified, the committee warned on Sunday.

Yesterday, attempts were made by the Lydda Labour Council, the Transport Ministry and the Civil Servants' Union to persuade the committee to extend its deadline, committee chairman Nisim Batish said last night.

"What they can offer us on Thursday or Friday, they can still offer us today — by 11 p.m.," Mr. Batish replied. (18fm)

Starfighters chase Tupolev over Holland

THE HAGUE. — Two Dutch air force Starfighters were sent yesterday to chase a Soviet Tupolev 95 bomber sighted flying at 9,000 metres over Dutch territory, the Netherlands Defence Ministry reported.

The fighters had to give up the chase after the Russian plane changed course and they ran low on fuel. Two other TU 95s were also reportedly spotted in Dutch airspace. A similar overflight occurred in February 1970, when two TU 16s penetrated Dutch airspace and then disappeared northwards.

B-G TURNS 86

Two young children at Sde Boker yesterday wish Mr. David Ben-Gurion on the occasion of his 86th birthday that he should enjoy the 25th anniversary of the State of Israel. They parted with the greeting, "See you next year." (J.P.F.A.)

Jerusalem Post Reporter

SDE BOKER. — Scores of well-wishers came to David Ben-Gurion's desert retreat here yesterday to congratulate him on his 86th birthday. Israel's elder statesman welcomed the first guests to arrive on the lawn in front of his kibbutz home and immediately engaged them in lively conversation and reminiscences.

Speaking on his favourite subject of China, Mr. Ben-Gurion said that future cooperation between Japan and China would make Asia a strong factor in the world. Mr. Ben-Gurion also discussed the recent wave of Arab terrorism and took an interest in the absorption problems of Soviet Jews.

When an elderly man who came to wish him well identified himself as having come from Sejera (in Lower Galilee), Mr. Ben-Gurion asked him when he got there. To the man's reply "I came there in 1954," Mr. Ben-Gurion remarked with a big smile and a wave of his hand: "I worked there in 1907."

After the informal gathering at the kibbutz, Mr. Ben-Gurion attended a ceremony at the nearby Sde Boker college, naming a garden there in memory of Arye Bahir, a founding member of Kibbutz Afikim and one of Mr. Ben-Gurion's faithful supporters, who was also among the first to suggest that a college be established here.

Mr. Ben-Gurion's well-wishers included Justice Minister Ya'acov Shimshon Shapiro, Transport Minister Shimon Peres, Labour Minister Yosef Almog and Deputy Knesset Speaker Yitzhak Navon. Prime Minister Golda Meir sent a cable of greetings, expressing the hope that Mr. Ben-Gurion "will have many more years to fulfil his most valuable educational and literary work, so that future generations would learn about his share in the history of Israel's revival."

In the afternoon the visitors were shown a preview of the documentary film, "David Ben-Gurion Remembers," in which he re-visits and relives the important places and chapters since he arrived at the port of Jaffa 68 years ago. The film, a co-production of Israel and the Negev Foundation, will have its world premiere on November 29, the 25th anniversary of the U.N. vote in favour of establishing a Jewish State.

Syrian Embassy in Brussels ransacked

BRUSSELS (Reuter). — Intruders broke into the Syrian Embassy here and ransacked several offices during the weekend, an embassy spokesman said yesterday.

Several doors cupboards were smashed, as well as the ambassador's desk, he said. Police were investigating whether any documents were taken.

The spokesman said it was assumed that "Zionist elements" were responsible for the attack. But the intruders, who broke in through a ground-floor window, left no clue to their identity, he said.

Teachers, Ministry row over new matric exam

By SARAH HONIG
Jerusalem Post Reporter

AVIV. — A new dispute between secondary school teachers and the Ministry of Education over revised courses of study leading to a new type of matriculation exam is brewing. This time the teachers protesting the fact that the Ministry has not yet decided on the subject tenth graders will be tested at the end of the current school year.

The revised matriculation programme, the six matriculation exams will not all be concentrated a few days at the end of the school year but will be spread over a number of years, so that one will be taken by sophomores several more by juniors with rest to be left for the senior year. Although the Ministry has agreed to postpone the implementation of the new programme by one year due to lack of preparation, it is still talk of having the tenth graders take their matriculation exam at the end of the current school year.

These tenth grade pupils will be first to take the full range of matriculation exams. Originally it was expected that this year's eleventh graders would be first to benefit from the more intensive approach of the new matriculation exam.

However, even the plan of giving a tenth grade exam is running into trouble as the Ministry is yet to make up its mind whether they will be tested in Hebrew grammar and Bible studies. The teachers initially complained that they would switch over to the new course of study because they only received the new curricula two days before the opening of the new school year, now say that they cannot possibly prepare the children for the current exam, unless they know its subject.

The Ministry, however, is not ready to make up its mind and says that the final answer will not be available until after Hanukka. This would mean there would be no more than six months left until the exams are taken. The teachers argue that if the Ministry of Education wanted tenth graders to take one of their matriculation exams this year, they should have informed the teachers about the subject at the end of the previous school year.

The matriculation exam which the Ministry would now like tenth graders to take this year will not cover any material included in the new courses of study whose introduction to the classroom has been postponed for a year. This year's exam would be based wholly on material covered in the present course of study, the Ministry says.

There will, however, be two types of exams: the regular and the more difficult one. The latter would entitle pupils to extra credit. Material for the more difficult exam is not included in the present course of study and the Ministry says that the teachers would have to advise pupils on how to study the extra material.

Meanwhile, the Minister of Education's special committee which is to review the new courses of study will meet for the first time only after the Succot holiday, although it was to have convened some two months ago. Many teachers who were locked over the new courses say they are full of flaws.

Workers leave garbage in front of hospital

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Workers at Assaf Harofeh Hospital in Rishon LeZion who have been pressing for the upgrading of eight workers, removed the garbage and trash from the hospital wards and pavilions yesterday but left it to rot in front of the pavilions. In a day or two, they say, they are going to stop preparing food for the medical staff.

The hospital spokesman yesterday criticized the authorities for not solving the nine-month-old dispute and blamed the workers for their "complete cynicism" about the welfare of patients.

Mr. Shimon Hazaz, head of the strikers, said that the "fault is that nobody wanted to speak to us all these months." (Both the Histadrut and the Rishon LeZion Workers Council have not approved the strike.)

But he added that there would be a meeting between representatives of the workers and the Rishon LeZion Workers Council, the Ministry of Health, and possibly even representatives of the Civil Servants Commission.

The Ministry of Health spokesman said that the authorities were not going to give in to any pressure group. "The eight workers are not in line for regrading, and if we agree, it will initiate a series of strikes and work demands in hospitals throughout the country." The spokesman added that the strike would have ended long ago if the workers had agreed to an "impartial arbitrator." He added: "They did agree to an arbitrator but they wanted to choose him. We could not agree to this."

Officers to be courtmartialled in abuse case

Jerusalem Post Military Affairs Reporter

Three officers and two N.C.O.s are to be courtmartialled for having allegedly abused a soldier. A captain, two second lieutenants, a staff-sergeant and a sergeant have all been suspended from their regular duties pending trial.

The suspension order came following an internal investigation, ordered by the O.C., Training Branch, Aluf Shmuel Gonen, into complaints by a private who claimed that he had been illegally treated by his superior officers.

The private, who only recently joined the forces, said that while at an instructional centre, he had been "bullied" into taking part in a stretcher exercise, beaten when he refused to leave his tent for routine on-base jobs, and forced to build a circle of stones atop a hill and sit in it for several hours.

Investigators have found that the private had been illegally arrested. The soldier who lodged the complaint was known among his fellows as a "troublemaker" and had the reputation of being insubordinate to the extreme. Despite these charges, investigators found that the manner in which he had been disciplined was improper and constituted a contravention of military law.

Aliya mandatory for S. African Zionist leaders

South African Zionist leaders must set a personal example and commit themselves to their own aliyah (immigration to Israel), according to a resolution passed last week at the national conference of the South African Zionist Federation.

The resolution was submitted by the youth delegates to the conference, but was enthusiastically supported by all parties and age groups. Mr. Julius Weinstein was elected new chairman of the Federation.

Industry goods prices rise by 9.2 per cent

Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — Prices of industrial products increased by 9.2 per cent between the August 1971 devaluation and the end of the fiscal year on March 31, according to a survey released yesterday. It was one of the lowest rates of increases for the period, during which agricultural produce prices rose by 12.1 per cent, building expenses by 16.6 per cent and transport costs by 24 per cent. The survey, conducted by International Consultants, was commissioned by the Manufacturers' Association and the Histadrut's Economic Department.

Druse object to nursing career for their women

ACRE. — The Druse spiritual leaders headed by Sheikh Amin Tarif have protested to the Minister of Health against the training of Druse girls as hospital nurses. It was a violation of Druse traditions and religion, the Sheikh wrote.

Some of the Druse in Israel still refuse to let their wives deliver their babies in maternity wards because they fear that male doctors, not midwives, might assist them. The Health Ministry has lately opened courses for Arab and Druse girls to become nurses with the aim of posting them to hospitals when they graduate.

The Druse, who object to their women leaving their homes to take up any kind of career, say they prefer them to be treated by Arab or Jewish women doctors or nurses.

even Moscow Jews tried for protest on ransom

YORK (INA). — Seven Moscow Jews who staged a sit-down at government offices against new education taxes on would-be immigrants have been tried and sentenced to 15 days in jail, Jewish sources were quoted saying in an article in the "New Times" yesterday.

Other Jews, including a prominent activist, Alekssei Tumerman, been put in mental hospitals. At least two more are being held in undisclosed prisons in Moscow, according to information that Jewish sources say was given them by police.

Arrests were made on Thursday when 40 to 60 Jews took part in a sit-down to take part in a protest to the Supreme Soviet or collective leadership, the "Free Press" in Moscow said. The sit-down on August 3 and were expected to be ratified by the full Supreme Soviet at its two-day session, though the Soviet press did not disclose that any action had been taken.

Jewish sources said about 10 Jews in Vilna, Kishinev and Tbilisi had paid the education taxes, ranging from $6,000 to over $30,000 and affecting pensioners as well as recent graduates of higher educational institutions. So far as is known, one in Moscow has paid the taxes.

Fleeing lover breaks legs

HAIFA. — A Haifa man paying a visit to a married lady friend came to grief early yesterday when he broke both legs while trying to evade the returning husband by leaving via the balcony.

The husband told police that he had noticed a strange man leap from the balcony of his Kiryat Eliezer flat and try to crawl away. Thinking the man was a burglar, the husband rushed inside to see if anything had happened to his wife. He saw her struggling into her clothes.

The unlucky lover was taken by the police to Rambam Hospital.

Boy, 14, gets 5 years for aiding 'execution'

By H. BEN-ADI
Jerusalem Post Reporter

GAZA. — A 14-and-a-half-year-old Gaza boy was sentenced yesterday by a military court to five years' imprisonment for being an accessory to the murder of a family of six by a terrorist execution squad last July.

The boy, Fayez Kamal Ali Badawi, also received an additional seven years' suspended sentence.

In the summer of 1971, Badawi, then only 13, served as messenger for Sheikh Salah Khadas, the head of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine unit in the Shati refugee camp. The boy was ordered to stand look-out, while the Sheikh and five others abducted the six members of the Abu Lamin family, consisting of Abu Lamin, 53; his wife, 40; their 15-year-old daughter; and three sons, aged 9 to 22.

Tied and blindfolded, they were transported to a secluded spot on the sand dunes and murdered there. The boy, Fayez, helped dig the graves and dump the bodies into them.

The prosecutor, Segen Aharon Levi, told the court that the husband and wife were murdered first. At this point, one of their sons, 17-year-old Bashir, managed to get free, spat in the terrorist leader's face and started running. The Sheikh and his men chased him for about 200 metres. When they caught up with him, they stabbed him to death.

This diversion lasted for about 10 minutes, the prosecutor said, providing the boy with the opportunity of running away had he wished. He could also later have reported the murders to the police, he added.

Sheikh Khadas — who was known as a religious fanatic — was killed in September, 1971 in a clash with security forces in the yard of the Shifa Hospital. Various documents found on his body included the protocol of the Abu Lamin family's "trial." They had been "sentenced" to death for "treason and failure to live according to the precepts of the Koran."

The president of the court, Seren Yoram Galin, stated that the boy had been under the "evil influence" of Sheikh Khadas and could hardly distinguish between good and evil.

Badawi is the second member of the murder gang to be convicted for the crime. On September 4, Mohammed Abu Sharif, of Rafah, 17, was sentenced to life imprisonment. Four more men are due to stand trial.

Marmorek files appeal

Jerusalem Post Sports Reporter

AVIV. — Marmorek Hapoel today filed an appeal with the High Court against the punishment meted out by an F.A. disciplinary court finding bribery attempts last week.

Aharon Kohn, the lawyer representing Marmorek Hapoel, said he expected the F.A. high court to hear the club's appeal by next week.

"If the disciplinary court's decision is upheld, it is likely to end to Marmorek's play in the National League," Mr. Kohn said. The Rehovot team won promotion to the National League year.

The disciplinary court, comprising lawyers David Lev and Amos Harel, ruled that Marmorek Hapoel lost eight points from their total at the end of this season. The club was also fined IL3,000 and members of the club's management were barred from all sports for three years. The four Messrs. Gavriel Otmey, Haim Hananel Adam and Yehuda Meshulmy. No Marmorek players were involved in the bribery attempts.

The F.A. disciplinary court found that management members of Marmorek Hapoel attempted to bribe certain players of Sha'arayim Maccabi, another Rehovot club which was Marmorek's main competitor for promotion to the National League. The bribery attempts were made through an agent, who was a main witness in the hearings.

Although holding the club responsible, the lawyers Lev and Harel explained they had decided not to relegate Marmorek Hapoel because in fact no result of the team's games had been affected. They said they did not wish to cause an injustice to the club's players and fans by allowing their place to be taken in the National League by another team.

"There should be no place in clubs for football functionaries who try to achieve results by unsporting methods," the lawyers declared.

The police is also investigating the case, it is learned.

Family Medicine Workshop: Normal, healthy people are making society sick

By MACABEE DEAN
Jerusalem Post Reporter

TEL AVIV. — The so-called normal healthy person needs medical care the most, the keynote speaker at the International Workshop on Family Medicine here has stated. A dozen countries have sent delegations to the week-long workshop.

Prof. J.H. Medalie, chairman of the Department of Family Medicine at the Tel Aviv Medical School, said on Sunday, these "normal, healthy" persons were creating illness and spreading destruction by "poisoning the atmosphere, cutting down the forests, discriminating against minorities and making nuclear bombs."

Prof. Medalie, who viewed family medicine not as limited to treating only the sick, pointed out that it should place great emphasis, perhaps most of its emphasis, on the family physician educating the family, which in its widest sense meant the public, to stay well, both physically and mentally.

"Normal" persons, he said, were creating a society in which degenerative diseases were constantly growing. Moreover, our modern society placed great physiological stress on individuals, and this stress converted latent pathological factors into active ones, he added.

Prof. Medalie said that in today's society, pollution, smoking, poor working relationships, role conflict, cultural discontinuity and rapid mobility all played a role in causing ailments.

It was the task of the family doctor, he said, to educate the "family" to view the world about it with "realistic" eyes and avoid the man-made dangers.

Dr. Haim Doron, Medical Director of Kupat Holim, said that "family medicine" should even be considered a "behavioural discipline," like psychiatry, and not a pure medical or surgical one. He admitted that the "image" of the family doctor was low. One reason was the methods of the teaching medicine in the medical schools where the emphasis was placed mainly on specialization and research, he said.

Family hunger strike in sixth day

KIRYAT SHMONA. — A family of six yesterday continued their hunger strike in front of the Local Council building for the fifth consecutive day in protest against the alleged discrimination against their eight-year-old son by his headmaster.

The family, Melr and Victoria Hamu, and their four children, aged nine months to eight years, have been complaining about the principal of the Matzudot school ever since their son, Yosef, entered the first grade last year. Mr. Hamu is to stand trial shortly on charges of assaulting the principal in the street.

The immediate cause of their hunger strike is the insistence of the school authorities that the parents sign a promise not to assault the principal during the present school year as a condition for the acceptance of their six-year-old daughter, Rachel, in the first grade.

The head of the Municipal Education Department, Mrs. Daliah Shemesh, explained that she was carrying out an order from the regional school inspector. The head of the Local Council, Mr. Avraham Aloni, refused to comment to "Tim" on the matter. (Tim)

Hanged erring son by heels

TEL AVIV. — A Herzliya man who hung up his 10-year-old son by the heels to teach him not to keep bad company was released on IL500 bail by the Magistrate's Court here yesterday and told not to lay a hand on the boy again.

The father, Yaakov Nissani, of 45 Rehov Gan Rashal, is accused of having beaten the boy with a stick and then tying his feet and hanging him upside down from a tree in the Nissani backyard. The boy's cries aroused the neighbours, who called police.

Nissani told Magistrate Yisrael Zohar yesterday that his son had been keeping bad company and he had been trying to keep the boy from turning into a thief. (Tim)

Arab League urges joint plea to Bonn on security measures

CAIRO. — The Arab League has urged member states to ask West Germany immediately to stop alleged arbitrary measures against Arabs living in or travelling to that country, League sources said here yesterday.

The sources said the League secretary is circulating a Libyan note handed to the West German Ambassador in Tripoli on Sunday which asks for an end to anti-Arab measures.

Libya is the third Arab country to complain of hostile West German treatment of Arab subjects. Egypt and Kuwait have already warned Bonn that they will take similar anti-West German measures if it continues anti-Arab acts.

In Damascus, "Al Ba'ath," the newspaper of the ruling Arab Ba'ath socialist party, charged yesterday that the West German authorities were persecuting Arab nationals.

The paper said the Germans were persecuting Arabs and ill-treating Syrian nationals when they enter German territory.

The Baghdad newspaper "Al Thawra" said yesterday that Arab states should adopt prompt and effective measures for the protection of Arab nationals in West Germany.

Arab League representatives in Western Europe will meet in London tomorrow to discuss the current wave of anti-Arab propaganda in the world, the Middle East News Agency said yesterday.

GENERAL POLICY

The meeting, which will be chaired by League secretary-general Mahmoud Riad, will last three days, the agency said.

"The meeting will concentrate on a general Arab policy to face the consequences of the Munich Olympic Games incident (in which Israeli athletes were massacred) and the anti-Arab propaganda which followed it," the agency said.

In Damascus the Sa'ika terrorist group said yesterday that Israeli intelligence and Zionism are behind the current wave of terrorism in the world.

The Syrian-backed group said that among the Israeli-inspired terrorist acts were the parcel bombs mailed from Amsterdam.

New East-West German talks start today 22 killed as plane hits Calif. ice cream shop

EAST BERLIN (Reuter). — East and West German officials open another round of negotiations on a basic treaty normalizing their relations here today with both sides working flat out to reach agreement which could boost the re-election hopes of West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

The heads of both delegations have said they are pleased with progress made at their last two-day meeting here two weeks ago.

Bonn State Secretary Egon Bahr, the Chief West German negotiator, said later that there were still "a couple of knots to be untied." He added that he wanted to keep the negotiations out of the election campaign, but sources close to him said he was optimistic that the two sides could reach agreement before the elections, scheduled for November 18.

East German Communist leader Erich Honecker said here three days ago that there was a good chance of putting relations between the two German states on a normal footing in the near future.

East Germany has freed considerably more than 12 West Germans in exchange for two women spies handed over at the weekend, informed sources in Bonn said yesterday.

A government spokesman merely confirmed that Liene Lindner, arrested nearly three years ago with secret Cabinet minutes in her handbag, had been returned.

Frau Lindner, 45, was accused of masterminding a spy ring with contacts reaching into Chancellor Willy Brandt's cabinet.

While living in Cologne as "Ingeborg Weber," she was alleged to have passed to East German intelligence data on research projects in West Germany which she obtained from the confidential secretary of two successive science ministers.

The secretary, Irene Schultz, 53, has also been handed over to East Germany, the informed sources said.

Saigon pushes to clear Highway 1 before rains

SAIGON (UPI). — Allied forces killed more than 150 Communist troops in fighting along the central coast, South Vietnamese said yesterday.

The South Vietnamese also began a push to clear Highway 1 before the rainy season — only two weeks away — cuts off key Government outposts from resupply, the reports said.

A U.S. transport plane tried to parachute supplies yesterday to one threatened outpost but the winds carried them behind Communist lines, the reports said. Allied fighter-bombers were credited with killing 35 Communist troops and knocking out five mortar and two anti-aircraft positions outside the camp.

Most of the action centred in Quang Ngai province but other weekend battles also erupted in Quang Tin to the north and Binh Dinh to the south, allied military communiques reported.

U.S. military sources said air force jets tipped off by intelligence reports caught North Vietnamese troops trying to move heavy artillery pieces to high ground overlooking Quang Tri city on the far northern front.

The sources said the fighter-bombers destroyed at least six of the big guns on Sunday and early yesterday. Two others were destroyed elsewhere in the same sector.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (Reuter). — An F-86 Sabre jet crashed into an ice cream parlour shortly after take-off on Sunday, killing 22 persons, many of them children at a birthday party.

Coroner's deputies said at least 10 children — apparently part of a group of 17 celebrating a birthday at a front table — were killed when the plane slammed into the ice cream shop and burst into flames.

Eye-witnesses said the aircraft reached a height of about 15 metres after take-off, then plunged down. It clipped a fire hydrant, scraped across four cars, then smashed into the eating-place, which stands just beyond the runway of the city's Old Municipal Airport.

The converted jet fighter of Korean War vintage had taken part in a two-day show at the airport. The pilot-owner, Richard Bingham, 36, of Richmond, California, who was pulled out of the wreckage with a broken arm, mumbled to rescuers: "I'm sorry. Get the people out."

Among the dead were two persons who were in a car passing in front of the ice cream parlour as the jet crashed, and a man and his wife and their two children inside the shop.

Sixteen people were admitted to the Sacramento Medical Centre, one of them in critical condition. Seven were released after treatment. Some reports said there were as many as 200 people in the shop at the time of the crash.

An employee of the ice cream parlour, who escaped out the back of the building, said the children were seated at a front table when the plane hit the shop.

Another witness, who helped to carry out the bodies, said the table was pushed into the centre of the room.

Inquiry into nightclub fire opens in Rhodes

RHODES (Reuter). — The Rhodes public prosecutor yesterday opened an inquiry into the causes of a fire in a nightclub here on Saturday which caused the deaths of 32 persons.

The dead comprised 20 Swedes, five Danes, five Irish, and two Greeks.

According to the Prefect of the Dodecanese Islands, Mr. Demetrios Ailamianos, the inquiry "will examine all aspects and will try to establish responsibility, if any."

A team of six experts, engineers and electricians, have been assigned to prepare a report on the causes of the fire at the Oscar nightclub, in the centre of Rhodes.

The experts visited the gutted club yesterday and examined the electricity wiring and fuse box which is believed to have caused a short circuit and started the fire.

Among the first to be interrogated by the prosecutor were the owners of the nightclub.

Athens coroner Demetrios Kapsalis and a team of Scandinavian doctors were still at work trying

U.S. denies attache defected to Syria

BEIRUT (UPI). — A U.S. Embassy spokesman yesterday denied a press report that Major Richard Barratt, assistant military attaché at the U.S. Embassy in Amman, might have defected to Syria.

Barratt, 36, was arrested by Syrian authorities on September 9 as he travelled from Amman, through Syria, to Lebanon to see his wife and child.

The embassy spokesman said, "we are continuing and pursuing our efforts to get him released."

A Lebanese weekly magazine yesterday suggested Barratt, who speaks fluent Arabic, might have defected to Syria willingly, carrying with him important documents.

Catholics boycott parley on Northern Ireland

DARLINGTON, England (UPI). — A three-day conference on Ulster's political future opened yesterday behind a wall of tough police security and with more than half the chairs empty.

All Roman Catholic minority parties and one breakaway Protestant group boycotted it.

William Whitelaw, Secretary for Northern Ireland, took his seat to find only leaders of the strongly pro-British Ulster Unionist party, the small mainly Protestant Northern Ireland Labour party and the Alliance party, a mixed Protestant-Catholic group, there to meet him. British officials said the atmosphere was good.

As they met at a luxury hotel near this north-eastern England industrial town, British security police checked all mail for letter bombs.

Nearly 100 police, many with guard dogs, patrolled the 15-acre park. A nearby golf course was closed. Car parking within a 300-metre radius was banned as an anti-bomb precaution.

Meanwhile, in Belfast yesterday, a bomb in an underground garage heavily damaged one of the city's newest and most luxurious hotels.

Four armed men drove a television repair truck into the Russel Court Hotel's garage at 8 a.m. and shouted a warning that a bomb was inside.

8 Lithuanians on trial for 'hooliganism'

MOSCOW (Reuter). — Eight persons went on trial in Lithuania yesterday in a case presumed to arise from last May's riots in Kaunas, the Baltic republic's second city.

Tass news agency said the eight were being tried by the Lithuanian supreme court in Vilna for "hooligan actions and crude violation of public order."

Soviet officials blamed the riots on "a small group of hooligans" and said the young man whose suicide by immolation sparked them off was mentally ill.

Tass said most of the eight accused were drunk, and the news agency emphasized that this was an aggravating circumstance in Soviet law.

Two of them, named as Antanas Kacinskas and Kazis Grinkiaevicius, had faced trial before, it added.

Unofficial reports of the riots said they lasted for two days, resulting in the death of one policeman and several hundred arrests.

They also said that the dead youth, Roman Kalanta, had given political motives for his self-immolation in a Kaunas park. Soviet officials have denied any political link.

Predominantly Catholic Lithuania, which was an independent nation between the two world wars, was absorbed by the Soviet Union in 1940.

The official press has given strong indications of continuing nationalist sentiment there, with the suggestion that this centres around Lithuanians' loyalty to their church.

Earlier this year some 17,000 Catholics signed a petition to the Soviet leadership appealing for greater freedom for the church.

A Dancing Rorschach

Alwin Nikolais dancers in "Tower," that rare Nikolais piece presenting a recognizable metaphor.

(Susan Schiff, Faludi)

Alwin Nikolais Dance Theatre, Binyanei Ha'Oomah, Jerusalem, Saturday, September 23, 1972.

ALWIN Nikolais suggests to his audience that they regard his dance images as a fluid Rorschach test, each spectator gleaming his personal associations and interpretations from what he sees and hears. In fact, these elaborate multi-media compositions, brought this month to many Israeli stages, resemble the experiments of a behavioural psychologist.

It is as though the choreographer asks: "What will happen if I enclose my dancers totally in rectangles of red fabric? If I hide their lower limbs in hoop skirts? If I give them aluminium frames to carry? How will they behave? Then he adds projected slides in gorgeous colours — and an aural collage of electronic whistles, gurgles, ratchets and voices in random speech and gibberish. Nikolais alone is the complete master of the laboratory, since it is he who designs the costumes, the lighting, the sound scores and of course the movement.

Well, perhaps he is not solely in charge. The ten members of his company also affect the outcome. Fortunately they are apt subjects: each of the five girls and five young men contributes a lithe, well-controlled physique, an intelligent concentration in performance, and sometimes a personal charm, reflected in a lively face and an expressive body. The results at Jerusalem's Binyanei Ha'Oomah on Saturday evening gave pleasure with eye-dazzling coloured forms in motion; and with imaginative variety in developing ideas. The opening "Divertissement," which groups four short pieces from different works, recalled the remark one used to hear in the early concerts of Martha Graham: without stretch jersey there would be no modern dance!

"Sanctum" features frames of elastic cloth which the dancers wear, and then poke, twitch and twang to create vibrating linear designs. In "Vaudeville of the Elements," lampshade constructions of flexible cloth on hoops conceal the legs of five dainty maidens, who glide in graceful scallops as though on wheels. "Noumenon" presents three shapes of red stretch fabric which slowly change from one attenuated configuration to another, at the very end taking the form of the human figure within. (A boy sitting near me found this last an image of an Egyptian mummy, a chilling intimation of death.) "Boulevard" sends billowing shapes zipping around space, and careening into one another in a gaily animated cartoon. At one jolly moment a cluster of bodies figured together: a dancer bounces in, causing a dancer on the other side to bounce out, as though propelled from a diving board or see-saw.

Occasionally I had the feeling that the very props and costumes, which generate the logic and much of the interest of these compositions, are restricting. I wanted to see the dancers break out of them, to project more fully through their own body movement. But usually there was enough appealing, evocative action so that I was willing to accept the choreographer's conditions.

"Foreplay," a dance about sex, is for once minimally costumed and free of props. Here, the stylized, abstracted movement style provides the control. Sexuality conveyed in such a restricted manner lacks conviction. The middle section came off best for me, where Nikolais frankly treated the dancers like silly roneaguins, manipulating each other's limbs in irritated obstinateness. A short brunette girl made an especially funny contrast with a very tall lunkhead, whom she tried to bend to her pleasure.

"Tower" is a rare Nikolais piece in that it presents a recognizable metaphor — the construction of a tower (a city? a society?) of aluminium frames by a group of contentious, fatuous, disorganized, inflexible characters which ends up threatened with imminent destruction from inner turmoil. The dancers jabber frantically free form, while they use their life size tinkertoys to build up and tear down themselves, each other and their nursery school civilization.

This Tower of Babel evoked in me the local agitation around building Jerusalem. Whatever associations the rest of the audience found in it, they seemed to agree with me that it was a fine piece of art, in a most enjoyable concert.

Terrorist 'saints' turn out to be optical illusion

GAZA — Two sharp-eyed and unemotional police sergeants yesterday squashed some old wives' tales that might have led to the "canonization" of dead terrorists. A considerable number of old women were gathering daily at the cemetery in the Seiyeh Quarter here to pray, claiming they had seen the tombstones of dead terrorists move and that the dead had become "saints." The police decided to investigate and sent two sergeants to the cemetery to have a look. The sergeants reported back that the shadows of the tree branches, moving in the wind, indeed created the impression that the tombstones were themselves moving.

Free concerts scheduled by Police Band

Jerusalem Post Reporter
The Jerusalem Police Band will give a series of four free public concerts in October, all within the walls of David's Tower. The concerts, arranged by request of the Ministry of Tourism and the Jerusalem Municipality, are to be held on consecutive Monday afternoons, beginning October 2. Earlier this year the police band gave a number of public performances in Sacher Park on Ben-Zvi Boulevard and at Beit Phillips in the Valley of the Cross. The popularity of these concerts led to the request for further performances. The Ministry of Tourism and the Municipality have also planned for weekly concerts by the band to be part of Israel's 25th anniversary celebrations.

ROLE OF FAMILY DISCUSSED Jewish thought meeting opens in Jerusalem

By DAVID LANDAU
Jerusalem Post Reporter
THE family unit in Jewish life is the instrument whereby Jews maintain their "partnership" with God. Marriage is the ongoing fulfillment of a fundamental mitzva — not merely an arrangement for the satisfaction of physical and sociological needs. This was the theme of a lecture by the Chief Army Chaplain, Tal-Aluf Mordechai Piron, which opened the Eighteenth Annual Congress on Jewish Thought in Jerusalem yesterday.

The Congress is organized by the Tora Education Department of the Ministry of Education, in conjunction with the Municipalities of Jerusalem, Tel Aviv and Haifa. The first day's proceedings were held in the Van Leer Institute in the Capital. Today's sessions will be at Z.O.A. House in Tel Aviv; the closing sessions tomorrow will be held in the Community Centre in Rehov HaHermon, Haifa. The theme of this year's Congress is "The Family in Jewish Thought."

The Chief Chaplain stressed that the Jewish outlook towards marriage was wholly positive. There was none of the indifference or outright anti-feminism which was the hallmark of other philosophies, he said. One of the Rabbis in the Mishna, Ben-Azai, was strongly attacked by his colleagues because he did not marry, Rabbi Piron recalled. Ben-Azai's defence — made, according to Rabbi Piron in a distinctly apologetic tone — was: "What can I do, I have fallen in love with the Tora." But even this did not satisfy the other rabbis.

To the present day, Rabbi Piron noted, Jews look askance on confirmed bachelors or spinsters. This attitude was the product of thousands of years of education.

The marriage tie in Judaism was best expressed by the word used by the prophets: "covenant" (brit). There was no element of paternal tyranny, as was the case in Roman Law where the father owned his wife and children as chattels. Both the wife and the children in Jewish Law were independent individuals with clearly delineated rights and duties, Rabbi Piron pointed out. He warned that the fabric of family life was in danger of disintegrating, even among Jews, because of the permissive society and because modern living meant that members of the family unit spent more time apart than together.

Other speakers at the morning session were Professor Ze'ev Falk, who said that halacha must orientate itself to face changing social problems, Rabbi Dov Rappe, and the veteran Bible scholar Rabbi Yis-sachar Jacobson.

MORE THAN 100 English-speaking immigrants took part in the first Beersheba seminar held there by Hitahdut Olei Britannia from Friday through Sunday. The purpose of the seminar was to acquaint the western immigrants with the city and to attract more professionals to settle in it.

Too many stereotypes in marital drama me Is a Lonely Number (Orly, Aviv) deals with the subject of a broken marriage from the view of the abandoned wife. But any real interest or sympathy that could be evoked by the wife's plight is nullified by the sentimental, novelettish treatment given the theme. The film does start off rather well on a satirical note, with husband, a professor of English literature, leaving home. His fidgeted, fearful wife Amy (Orly) watches him kiss his valises, murmuring apocryphal, "I'm sorry I threw your coat out of the window." The only job Amy can manage to get is that of a lifeguard at a swimming pool. There is a shabby parallel between her striving to free herself from the longing for husband and the death of a patient after a heart-transplant operation. But the problem is usually her girl friend (Janet Leigh) sees to it that she meets some new men, and Amy does succumb to a tailor's dummy of a figure called Howard (Monte Markham) only to discover that he is a married man.

Pretty Trish Van Devere is not unappealing as Amy but most of the characters are stereotypes and are acted accordingly. Veteran Melvyn Douglas, however, is very good as a widowed, elderly greengrocer called Mr. Frow who takes Amy to see an operatic performance of "King Lear," another victim of desertion. Directed by Mel Stuart.

Reach For Life (Zafon, Tel Aviv) opens with a cardiac surgeon (Stuart Whitman) losing his post because of the death of a patient after a heart-transplant operation. But the problem of the ethics of such operations to much. The result is tedium rather than excitement.

They Still Call Me Trinity (Esther, Tel Aviv) is another chapter in the very popular "at least in Tel Aviv" comic Western that stars Bud Spencer and Terence Hill. This time the two books pose as Federal Agents, teach a card sharper a lesson, dress up as priests and generally manage to get in the way of and outwit everybody round them. There is plenty of hard-hitting but no bloodshed and really no sex. The whole piece is played for belly laughs, the humour being of the most elementary kind. It is all fundamentally good-natured, and the success of the series would seem to indicate that one does not always need bloody violence and violent sex to draw the crowd. S.W.

At the Cinema

is soon abandoned and the film develops into a thriller of sorts. Surgeon Whitman gets an apparently wonderful position at a magnificent heart-transplant clinic subsidised by a mysterious millionaire (Burl Ives). Before very long he discovers there is a horrid difference between appearance and reality and he is happy to have as an ally a young woman doctor (Sandy Dennis) who has access to certain revealing files. Neither plotting of the story nor the acting, except for Burl Ives' egocentric tycoon, is up

CUSTOMS DISPUTE CONTINUES

Dockers working full speed, but little cargo clears at Haifa

By YAA'ACOV FRIEDLER, Jerusalem Post Reporter

Haifa — Dockers who ended a strike on Sunday, were working at full speed yesterday. But, to the continuation of the strike, the unloaded cargoes were moved only as far as the warehouses, and the port is being clogged up.

Yesterday, 42 gangs of workers were deployed on 16 freighters in morning shift and another 20 in afternoon, while six more gangsters were waiting their turn to be bay. But only importers who customs-clearing documents in 1 from before the strike were to take their cargoes out of port. Telegrams from industrial firms in the North are streaming to the Chamber of Commerce, asking that they may have to produce export commitments. The Chamber's pleas to ministers and the Customs Authority to put a go-slow to the Customs officials have remained unanswered. The result is the Customs agents are lining their protest strike.

GO-SLOW CHAOS It is useless to try and work in chaos that has ensued from go-slow. The chairman of the port's Union, Leumi Eizim, told Post. "We are astonished that authorities are not taking this seriously. We offered to clear the goods out of the port by paying the levies into private banks, as an emergency measure, but have elicited no answer."

said that the agents' work was health hazard at the best of a, due to the tension involved. The past year we had 24 attacks among our 180 members, including several fatal ones. Try and work while the officials operate go slow is more than members can be asked to do," said.

Meanwhile, the dockers were being to realize that they had to work in vain, and stood to lose their pay in the bargain. The management steadily re-iterated their committee's demand for a go-slow, and the Labour Council urged them that it could not inalist on payment for a strike that it had opposed. On Sunday night, some of the committee members urged resumption of the strike. At 1:30 a.m. Council Representative Yehuda Cohen finally persuaded them that they would only cause themselves additional harm. They agreed to defer the strike-pay decision to Transport Minister Shimon Peres and Ports Authority Director Aharon Remes, whom they are to meet on Thursday for a full-scale discussion of labour-management relations in the port. They had asked for the meeting to discuss the statement attributed to Port Manager Yehuda Rahav in a recent newspaper interview, that a group of veteran dockers opposed the changes because they were worried about the good jobs they had gained for themselves over the years.

MATTER OF PRESTIGE It now appears that the whole strike was the result of a "prestige struggle," in which the secretary of the workers, Yisrael Garber, wanted to prove to the secretary of the foreman, Yosef Rubinstein, that "the foreman can make no agreement with the management without my consent." The struggle was intensified by the fact that the two men, who had been firm friends in the past, are now no longer on speaking terms. Another contributing factor was the local Labour Party infighting between Labour Council Secretary Eliezer Molk, who steadfastly opposed the strike, and other branch leaders, who are working against his reported mayoral ambitions.

TO CONSULT

The only thing the dockers got out of their strike was a reaffirmation by Mr. Rahav that he would consult with leaders on any future changes that might affect the work. As he had undertaken to do so in any case, when the work-management reorganization with the foremen was introduced last month, the committee had little to show them for the strike. Fortunately for them, most of the men had no idea what the reorganization was about, so that they will hardly realize the strike's lack of achievement. Yesterday, committee members were as-

Nixon asks I.M.F. for open system of trade

WASHINGTON (Reuter). — President Nixon yesterday called for complete reform of the world monetary system and said the U.S. would press for a more equitable and open system of trade based on fair competition.

The President told the annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank that an economic structure must be created that would help and not hinder the movement towards world peace.

Mr. Nixon warned finance ministers and central bank governors from 123 countries that "the danger of armed conflict between major powers is reduced the potential for economic conflict is increased."

He did not give the delegates any specific suggestions, speaking only in general terms and announcing that Treasury Secretary George Shultz later in the week would outline a number of proposals based on the best thinking of the administration's top economic advisers.

The President said the U.S. was the only country represented at the I.M.F. and World Bank meetings here that could not trace much of its postwar growth to the expansion of international trade.

He said the U.S. a generation ago set out to help its former enemies and weakened allies until they were able to compete with America in world markets. "Now we expect our trading partners to help bring about equal competition," he said.

He warned that the U.S. would not tolerate what he called an unfair system built into the world's trading system.

Mr. Nixon said this country's trading partners must forego the temptation to use industrial development and international commerce as an instrument of discrimination or rivalry.

"The time has come for action across the entire front of international economic problems," he declared.

The head of the I.M.F., Pierre-Paul Schweitzer, warned that currency speculation could break out again while finance officials seek a formula over the next year or so for a new world financial order.

He advocated wider international use of inflation controls to dampen excessive price and wage increases.

World Bank President Robert McNamara called for urgent international action to bring hundreds of millions of the world's poorest people out of "inhuman deprivation."

He warned that if steps were not taken soon, then countries would have to face the spectre of revolution.

He blamed the rich nations for not providing enough foreign aid, and said the developing countries were not doing enough to help the poorest 40 per cent of their populations.

TEL AVIV STOCKS

ACTIVE TRADING, PRICES ON RISE

TEL AVIV. — Stock prices continued to move up yesterday in very active trading. In spite of the holidays and the fact that banks are closed in the afternoon, volume rose to almost 11.4m, including 11.2m in the variables (figures for the previous day were 11.3m and 11.1m). The general index of share prices rose by 0.79 per cent, to 283.70.

Some more shares joined the big movers. Neot Aviv was plus 6 to 90, Rasseco Ordinary plus 8 to 86, Paz plus 6 to 122 and Motor House plus 4 1/2 to 86. Analysts find public belief that these shares are undervalued in comparison to other shares. Other shares which rose considerably on previous days, declined a bit, but some of the liquid money probably found a place in the above-mentioned shares.

Bank shares were steady, with some rising a bit. Bank Leumi rose 2 points on a volume of almost 100,000 shares. Clal Industries fell 5 points to 203.

While Wolfson fell 2 points to 112, the strength of ILDC is notable. With 79,100 shares turnover, it rose a point to 228. At this price, the rights will be started at a quote of 48 in today's trading. 117,000 shares caused Neot Aviv to rise from 84 to 90, and became volume leader.

At a C rose at the opening to 185.5, but later dropped to 180.5 (189.800). The convertible bonds have been quoted 117.5 "buyers only." Shernem rose another 6 points in the opening, but gave up one to close at 136.

Paz Investment jumped to 123, rose one more point, but closed at 122, volume 94,000. Piryon gained 4 1/2 to 99.5.

Koor was not dealt in yesterday, as the company denied an information of a 30 per cent dividend payments, which leaked into one of the daily newspapers.

Cost-of-living linked bonds have been irregular and dollar bonds slightly better. Volume was minimal, 11,757,000. Natad remained unchanged.

Partnership expense deductible

The Supreme Court allowed an appeal against a judgment of the Haifa District Court delivered on July 6, 1971 (in T.A. 97-70). Two partners took out life insurance policies on each other. The insurance was payable to the partnership upon the death of either partner. The question then arose as to whether the premiums on the policies was deductible from the partner's income for income tax purposes. The Assessing Officer held in the negative; and the Haifa District Court upheld his decision.

In the appeal to the Supreme Court the appellant, who is one of the partners, argued that there is no cause for differentiating between partnerships and companies and as the Supreme Court had already held in C.A. 177-69 (2 P.D. 23-47), that a company may deduct the pre-

Sapir, Rogers to sign accord on scientific research projects

By SAM LIPSKI, Jerusalem Post Correspondent

WASHINGTON. — Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir is tomorrow due to sign a bilateral research fund agreement with Secretary of State William Rogers which will provide $110m. in the first year for research projects of mutual scientific interest.

The signature ceremony is a highlight of Mr. Sapir's two-day visit here which includes a speech to the International Monetary Fund conference, meetings with Secretary of the Treasury George Schultz, and World Bank President Robert McNamara — with whom he is discussing loans for development of sewage projects in Israel — and finalization of a $100m. housing development loan with the Director of AID (Agency of International Development) John Hannah.

Mr. Sapir is returning to Israel after receiving commitments for contributions to Israel from wealthy American Jews, including some first-time contributors, totalling into the seven figures.

WALL STREET Closing Monday, Sept. 25, 1972 Stock prices fall rapidly which he urged world monetary reforms. But trading continued slow and prices sagged after the speech.

"The speech was good news, but not geared to the right audience as far as the market was concerned," said Robert Stovall of Reynolds Securities. "The stock market seems to be looking for a magic panacea to change investors' sentiments."

2 Milanese fined for smuggling Two visitors from Milan were recently fined IL6,950 each — or four months in jail — by the Tel Aviv Magistrate's Court for attempting to smuggle IL35,000 worth of women's wear into the country, a Treasury spokesman said yesterday.

The two men, Vincenzo Paparisa and Beniamino Ben-David, arrived at Lod Airport on July 24. Passing through customs, they said they had nothing to declare. A spot check, however, revealed: 308 dresses, 128 skirts, 130 pairs of slacks and 148 cotton blouses.

Several days later six more suitcases arrived from Italy in their name. They contained several hundred more articles of clothing. The court ordered the entire contraband confiscated.

Relief for Haifa dockers The Labour Council yesterday approved a strike of customs officers in the Tel Aviv area. The Council supports the employees' request for benefits reduced by income tax officials. The Council commended the customs officers for not resorting to "sanctions" but asking for a strike in an organized manner compatible with the law.

Strike affecting 1,400 employees, should begin in a fortnight if the conflict is not settled.

FIGHTING TERRORISM

U.S. Secretary of State Rogers made a forceful appeal at the U.N. Assembly yesterday for the right of ordinary people to live their lives and travel without constant fear of terrorist acts carried out for political purposes in which the innocent sufferers are not involved.

Some aspects of this question are being taken up by the International Air Transport Conference now being held in London. Air pilots and crews have a very direct personal interest in the matter, which daily threatens their lives, and even air travel companies are beginning to realize that the hijack threat and the reluctance of many people to travel on scheduled airlines may be the first real threat to the growth of air travel.

Obstacles in Argentine electoral road

ALTHOUGH a year has gone by since Argentina's army-backed President, General Alejandro Agustin Lanusse, announced that presidential elections would be held on March 23, 1973, only one candidate for the job has so far stepped forward, former Welfare Minister Francisco Manrique.

OTHER OBSTACLES Peron is not the only obstacle in the path to elections. The escape of 10 left-wing nationalists to Chile aboard a hijacked airliner in August and the subsequent shooting of 15 who were left behind — the official explanation is that they were trying to escape — was a severe blow to Lanusse and threatened to polarize the nation into two warring camps.

BUT NOT FORGOTTEN — Eva Peron has been dead for 20 years, but her portrait remains the most popular image among followers of her exiled husband. The posters displayed here advertise a trade union rally held this summer.

EX-WELFARE MINISTER But the most interesting possibility is offered by Manrique, who recently resigned from the Government after serving two years as the most successful and popular Social Welfare Minister the country has ever known.

Peron and his friends in Argentina and Madrid do not know which way to jump. The former dictator knows that his movement has long ceased to have any coherence, now embracing near-Maoists, and moderate but dissatisfied businessmen.

JAPAN FINDS NEW POLICY MODEL

The new Japanese Premier's visit to China is in part a goodwill mission, in part an occasion to apologize for wartime atrocities. But Mr. Kakuei Tanaka will also hope to negotiate a trade treaty and to establish diplomatic relations.

PRIME MINISTER KAKUEI TANAKA. (Camera Press)

TOKYO (Gemini). — JAPANESE Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, having cleared things with the U.S., is now in Peking to discuss formalizing relations between the two countries.

They also harbour remorse, which it seems cannot be eradicated, about the violence Japanese militarism inflicted on the Chinese people. To come to some kind of accommodation with China would ease this fear, to make amends in some way would ease this sense of guilt.

Treaty with Washington and under the American nuclear and diplomatic umbrella. The Japanese Government's idea is for Japan to seek merely amicable but not close ties with China, Russia or Communist Bloc countries and retain its alliance with the U.S.

(E.M.C.), which has evidently found the answer to the wars that have ravaged Europe for centuries, seems what Japan is looking for.
